I believe that they will be compelled to do so in order to practice the best economy.

The fall of 1921 was unusually favorable for hatching bees so that the colonies went into winter querters well see.

When you consider that white pine in Maine in the spring restock their yards when you consider that white pine in Maine is well named the "Pine Tree State".

In 1919 the white pine cut in Maine is saw mills was valued at approximately $7,100,000, of which pine owners received.

$7,100,000, of which pine owners receive $1.865,000 in stumpage. To-day Maine has approximately 3,000,000 acres of pine lands, 1,500,000 acres of which is immature growth. We find reproduction coming in throughout the southern half of the state. It is this young growth that the farmer, laborer, mill owner, and manufacturer must look their growth from white pine blister

In the garden beside a tall clump of bamboo, a black wattle with feathery leaves and pale yellow blossoms hangs over the water. There are great bunches of freesias, antirrhinums tall as bushes, double pink peach blossoms and scarlet carnations. A black swan swims up and down the water; he stretches out his long neck and utters his queer guttural cry. From the veranda you can see on the skyline a long low hill, bare of trees, but green in the distance. There are no mists; all the outlines are sharply defined against the blue sky. I shine in the light of God, His likeness stamps my brow, Through the shadows of death my feet have tro And I reign in glory now. No breaking heart is here, No keen and thrilling pain, No wasted cheek, where the frequent tear Hath rolled and left its stain.

I have found the joy of heaven, I am one of the angel band, To my head a crown of gold is given, And a harp is in my hand. I have learned the song they sing, Whom Jesus hath let free; And the glorious walls of heaven shall ring With my new-born melody! No sin, no grief, no pain, Safe in my happy home My fears all fied, my doubts all slain, My hour of triumph come!

Oh! friends of mortal years, Do I forget? Oh, no! For memory's golden chain Shall bind my heart to the hearts below Till they meet and touch again.

Each link is strong and bright, And love's electric fiame Flows freely down, like a river of light To the world from which I came. Do you mourn when another star Shines out from the glittering sky? Do you weep when the raging voice of war And the storms of conflict die?

Then why should your tears run down, And your hearts be sorely riven, For another gem in the Saviour's crown, And another soul in heaven? ## You Will Enjoy Good Music Through the New EDISON and Budget Plan

A LL through the centuries the beneficial influence of good music has been recognized and appreciated by those financially able to gratify their desire for it. Today, however, people of moderate means can enjoy the distinctive privilege of having the famous artists of the musical world and the stars of the variety stage sing and play for them right in the seclusion of their own homes.

Mann said private way to be over the old location of the discontinued road to Redding, the Municipal officers of said Woodstock m.t at the Town Hall in said Woodstock, on December 24, 1921, and on said December 24, 1921, the said Municipal officers laid out said way as above described; that at a special meeting of the Inhabitants of Woodstock held January 9, 1921, the said inhabitants of said town accepted said way as laid out; that your petitioner is, interested as being owner of land over which said way is laid out; your petitioner says that said way is laid out; your petitioner says that said way is noncessary; that said way does not lead from land under improvement to a town or highway; that there now are other proper ways leading to said land of said Edwin J, and Lewis M. Mann, without recourse to said way as laid out by said Municipal officers.

Wherefore your petitioner appeals to this Court and prays that this Court may review the proceedings as taken, and act as provided for by Revised Statutes of Maine, 1916, Chapter 24, and acts additional and amendatory thereof.

HOMEMAKERS' COLUMN.

A Beneficial Change of Mind. (By A. Borden Stevens.) Much is written every day for the benefit of those who too easily gain weight, but little is said about the need of a change in the point of view by the person who watches the scales so anxiously from week to week. The measure of energy is the calorie, and the measure of food is calories. We, who are above normal weight, think too much about calories. We must change our yiewpoint, and think about bulk; not our own bulk, but bulk in the daily

Young people eat for nourishment and growth. They expend energy through all the hours of a long day. As they grow older it is safe to plan menus on a different basis. With lessened activities, it is not so much nourishment that the appetite craves, as it is a grateful feeling of having had enough. The craving is for quantity. Calories, which cannot be avoided entirely, however strange our diet, will take care of themselves if we will take care of a proper balance of the elements which are needed for the up-
